dividend-paying companies are the safest, of source, for investment, and when a purchaser is fully advised of what returns he is likely to receive for his money the fault is his own if he pays too much. In fancy stocks the purchases are entirely speculative, and those outsiders who buy that description of shares do so under the belief that they will be sikely to realize on a rapid yet anaccountable rise. They go blindly into the speculation, and are willing to take the chances, which almost invariably result in loss, the cliques who manage them being the parties who secure

The bids for the two million soldiers' bounty Roan ware opened to-day by Comptroller Brennan, and the total sum offered was found to be $3,130,700, ranging between par and 105%. There was one bid of $7,000 at 107.

Gold was dull again to-day, and the quotations were nearly nominal. The premium opened in the morning at 58%; but before noon it had run down to 5714, and remained inactive at a slight odvance from that figure for the remainder of the day. The speculators and gamblers are getting frightened. They have no gold on hand, and consequently have nothing to lose if the price consiones to recede, and they are afraid to operate for a rise while the government surplus bill is before Congress.
